OF HISTORIC INTEREST.

An edict of Charles IX. of France, dated 1563, made it a civil offense to offer any guest more than three courses at one meal. If a fourth appeared, the provider of the feast was liable to a fine of 200 francs; while the guests who partook of it could be called upon to pay the authorities 40 francs each.

Lord Avebury, otherwise Sir John Lubbock, was the first person in England to have his photograph taken. M. Deguerre, the co-inventor of the art, came to London to patent his discovery, and paid an early visit to Lord Avebury's father. The son was playing in the garden and was succossfully photographed.

At the end of Washington's administration there were 16 states in the union. There was also the "Northwest Territory," as it was called, not yet organized into states—the whole wide region between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, from which slavery had been forever excluded by a law passed by congress in 1787. The first census of the nation was taken in 1790; and the population was about 4,000,000 (3,-929,214).

Turtle doves were excommunicated in Canada in the seventeenth century, and termites in Brazil and Peru in the eighteenth. Enough, however, has probably been said. The eccentricities of mediaeval judicial procedure are numerous, but this is, perhaps, one of the greatest, and one can only conclude that our ancestors must have had an abundance of time to waste it they were willing to spend it on such

La Fayette's visit to this country (1824) as "the nation's guest" was a joyous event. He traveled through each of the 24 states, and was everywhere welcomed with delight. His visit to the tomb of Washington was full of affectionate remembrance. He was carried home in a national vessel, the Brandywine, named in honor of the battle in which La Fayette first drew his sword in behalf of the col-

A German has invented a means of using light rays instead of wires tor telephony. The system has been found very useful at sea, the searchlight carrying the voice perfectly.

An Italian engineer has recently developed a very efficient and economic process for welding steel and iron by means of acetylene gas. The heat produced by the combustion of acetylene and oxygen mixed at the moment of burning is about 7,200 degrees Fahrenheit, which is higher than the temperature of the oxyhydrogen flame and near that of the electric arc.

A very efficient stenotyping amchine by which a syllable (and in some cases two or three sylalbles) is printed in plain type at each stroke of the fingers, has just been invented by a Parisian. This result has been obtained by an ingenious ararngement of the letters of the alphabet. It is said that 50 words a minute can be written by an amateur, while a normal speed of 125 to 150 words can be obtained in two months, and in some cases as high as 300 words.

A mechanical device has been invented which is reported to be sure to induce drowsiness and then sleep in ordinary cases of wakefulness. It is said to have almost hypnotic powers in that direction, though it consists in nothing but curiously shaped and irregularly placed "paddlers" attached to a slowly revolving wheel. ocratic Party Only Bulwark Against Tyranny of Centralized Power.

The eventual struggle in this counsocialism and the Republican party with its persistent efforts for centralization, is to blame for the growth of the socialistic propaganda. The democracy has always stood for the freedom of the individual and home rule and opposed to the paternalistic and Hamiltonian theory that the federal government must be all powerful. The constitutional provision that all rights not granted by the states to the central government are reserved to the states and the people, is the fundamental doctrine of the Democratic party. Jefferson, the apostle of the Democrats, declared this and no true Democrat has ever gainsayed it.

Mr. Bryan, who has been accused by the Republicans of socialism, shows by his conservative views in his article entitled, "Individualism vs. Socialism," in the Century Magazine for April his own and the Democratic position. In that article he says: "Much of the strength devloped by socialism is due to the fact that socialists advocate certain reforms which individualists also advocate. Municipal ownership of monopolies, for instance, is advocated by individualists, because it is practically impossible to have more than one water system in a city, and by the latter on the general ground that government should own all the means of production and distribution Mr. Bryan remarks that the sentiment for municipal lighting plants is not yet so strong, and the sentiment in favor of public telephones and street car lines is still less pronounced; but the same general principles apply to them, and individualists, without accepting the creed of socialism can advocate the extension of municipal ownership to them." He further shows plainly the evils to the individual citizen of socialism when he says: "If the government operates all the factories, all the farms, and all the stores, there must be superintendents as well as workmen; there must be different kinds of employment, some more pleasant, some less pleasant, and he asks: "Is it likely that any set of men can distribute the work or fix the compensation to the satisfaction of all, or even to the satisfaction of a majority of the people?" How great, therefore, is the gulf between the Democracy and the socialists, who believe in concentrating all power in the central government, whereas the Democrats stand for the utmost freedom of the individual citizen without infringement upon the rights of others.

The trend of Republicanism is to rush to congress for a cure for political evils; to overlook, and even aid, executive usurpation over the repretrusts and corporations who in return keep their friends in power. The Democratic doctrine is exactly opposite and is expressed by "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none." Without the Democratic party, which alone offers all classes equal rights, there would be a certain hurrying of the unthinking to the extreme of appropriating all the means of production and distribution by the national government, so that ultimately there effort. The confiscation of the property of those who, by saving or superior ability, had secured a competence would follow the appropriation of the millions.

The Democrats are striving to curb and control by equitable laws the trusts, the corporations and individuals who are monopolists, so that the humblest citizen shall have equal opportunity with them, and the first sten in that direction is to abolish the special privileges that the Republican party has granted its favorites.

-The Republicans of New York state are divided in the opinion of what to do with Odell, the chairman of the Republican state committee. The faction that follows the president demands that he be thrown out, and another faction is inviting him to retire gracefully. Still another faction favors his retention. This should be a lesson to the Democrats to get together and put their best men forward.

-Senator Tillman may be relied upon to run that railroad rate special Selby before the late meeting of the he has charge of, in spite of the danger Ohio Horticultural society. This is signals the Republican senators are flashing on the track.

-The coal trust is very anxious for us to believe that it has not put un the price of coal, but if it wants to appeal to public opinion, it should reduce the freight and advise congress to abolish the tariff duty and the price of coal would come down.

-The old saying that politics makes strange bedfellows is exemplified by the stress of the Republican New York politicians. Senator Platt has virtually declared that Odell. chairman of the Republican committee, is nothing but a vulgar grafter. Odell has not concealed his opinion that Platt is a hoary corruptionist, and evidence is not lacking to prove that both have told the truth. Yet these two eaders are said to have joined forces to prevent the reformation of the Republican party in New York. Nor is It the only case by any means, for in Ohio the Hanna and Foraker machines are uniting to defeat the Democratic Laying Out the Roadbed and Keeping It in Repair-Use the King Drag.

It is one thing to build a good road and it is another to keep it in repair. try will be between individualism and O. W. Mapes gives some important sugestions on the work of building and repairing roads, as follows: The first step is to stake out the work, by making a light furrow on each side of the proposed work, 12 or 14 feet apart. If any part of these first furrows comes within the beaten track, where it is hard, it should be done just after a soaking rain, either with a plow or the point of a road machine. Next put the wheel of the road machine in this light furrow, hold the point of the blade firmly down in place, remove every stone which the point strikes and work down and out, until enough dirt is secured to bring a good crown to the center of the road and a good gutter on each side, making suitable outlets from all low points in these gutters. This is only a question of applying sufficient team power and removing all stones that interfere with making a good gutter. On portions of our road this alone will give us a good road with proper care in honing down after each heavy rain, and raking out all loose stones. Other portions will need a little gravel or shale along the crown of the road. There are several hills where this can be se cured requiring only short hauls. A cubic yard hauled on a 12-foot wagon is enough for the worst places by dumping a full load in a place, and in other places a half or a third of a load in a place will finish the crown of the load. Grading with the machine should not cost more than $25 per mile, nor draw ing the gravel on the crown of the road more than 40 cents per cubic yard. This makes the cost only $200 per mile, were a full load of gravel placed on the crown of the road all the way.

How about the after-care of such : road? Here is the secret of success When the first rain comes, passing teams and vehicles will puddle the ma terial along the crown of the road in the beaten track, forming a hard crust as it dries, which will be somewhat rough and uneven. Before it becomes too dry and hard, hone the surface perfeetly smooth and true with a light hone, about five or six feet long. One man and team can hone off a bunch of road in this way, if he understands his business, at slight cost. He should stand on the hone, and guide it by stepping from one end of the hone to the other as the occasion requires. This is very inexpensive and should be resentatives of the people; to favor peated after every big rain, though it will never soften much after the first have furnished money to corruptly puddling. Now rake off any loose stone and you have a beaten track on the crown of the road, over which a bicycle or an auto will roll as smoothly as on the best macadam road, and on which you can drive a clean buggy an hour after a summer shower without having to avoid mud holes. The only othe care needed on such a road will be to sprinkle a very little good gravel, shale or even hardpan, right in the center of the beaten track, occasionally, accordwould be no incentive for individual ing to the amount of wear on the road. and keep the gutters from filling, throwing the stuff scoured out of them away from the road instead of back into it.

There have been some questions about property of those who had amassed the proper "home" use in fitting such a road. A picture of the King road drag It was designed by D. Ward King, of Missouri, and has proved so successful that special trains have been run to enable Mr. King to carry the "gospel of good roads" to farmers. Directions for making and Ely's Cream Balm using the drag are as follows:

"Log, 12 inches in diameter, of some soft wood; oak is too heavy. Slabs seven to nine feet long, to such weight of team. Cross sticks hold the slabs 30 inches apart. Platform of inch boards should be laid on cross sticks. Two-by-twelveinch plank can be used instead of log slabs; when planks are used it is betway people have of spelling steel trust ter to reenforce the middles with a --- What a good time the tariff pro. | 2x4 piece lengthwise. HUMUS IN THE ORCHARD.

The Presence of Decaying Vegetable Matter Not Opposed to Clean Culture.

With horticulturists in Ohio there is not the same universal devotion to the doctrine of clean cultivation in orchards as holds true in the neighbor ing states like Michigan, said A.
